4. Cookies

4.1. The importance of cookies

Cookies collect information about visitors and their devices, remembering the individual settings of visitors, which will be used. They facilitate the use of the website; they improve the user experience and also take a role in collecting visitor statistical information.

It places a data package (cookie) on the user's computer, which is read back during subsequent visits to the website. When the browser returns a previously saved data package (cookie), the service provider managing the data package can link the user's current visit with previous visits in relation to its own content.

Some of the data packages (cookies) do not contain information suitable for identifying the individual user, some of them contain a randomly generated sequence of numbers, which is stored by the user's device - thus the user can be identified.

4.2. Analytics

Google Analytics cookies are used on the kentaurographics.hu website. By using the statistical service Google Analytics, the kentaurographics.hu website collects information about the website usage characteristics of the visitors. The data is used to develop the website and improve the user experience. These data packages (cookies) remain on the visitor's device until they expire or the visitor deletes them.

4.3. Legal basis for cookie management

Its legal basis is the consent of the website visitor, based on Article 6 (1) point a) of the relevant Regulation.
